Building Communities From the Inside Out

Asset based community development training presented by Henry Moore offers a unique approach to community revitalization. The program emphasizes ALL citizens in the community have valuable gifts to contribute, almost all local associations can contribute to the community and the key to a strong community revolves around "the producers" in the community. ABCD will help you identify community assets and strengths in Wichita, determine the role of government in mobilizing citizens, and assist city officials move towards a new system of resident engagement and community self-reliance.

Learn how to make sure residents are at the center of community-building efforts; to build upon previous efforts and strengthen the city's existing community development initiatives; utilize ABCD tools—such as small grants, capacity inventories, association mapping, and institutional self-inventories to make neighborhood planning and development processes more relevant to the neighborhood and rediscover and mobilize local assets to build more self-reliant communities. ABCD is committed to resident-directed community development.
